

MUSEUM GETS 1868 LOCOMOTIVE

The Black Diamond, small inspection locomotive of the Reading Railroad which was built in 1868, being turned over to the Museum of Transport in a ceremony at the museum, Barretts Station, St. Louis county, yesterday afternoon. On platform (from left) are: R. N. Tucker, chief clerk of the Reading; Walter W. Thompson of the museum; Emmett McConnell, Reading general agent who is presenting key to locomotive, and V. Ginder, traveling freight agent for the line. On ground (from left) are: Dr. Thomas H. Hazel of Webster Groves, formerly of Reading, Pa.; Joseph Whalen, retired master mechanic for the Missouri Pacific who once was apprentice engineer on the Black Diamond, and Mrs. Hazel.

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

16 May/49

